

The Game

The movie Silent Hill is based on a very successful survival horror video game franchise produced by Konami. Many of the characters, settings and situations came from the video game. One such element is how the environments begin to decay and crumble as an eerie darkness falls over the town.

Poster Information

The poster art was created with acrylics on art board. The size is 16.5in x 25.5in. One influence for the poster is the artist H.R. Giger and his often abject organic figures. The sword wielding monster in the foreground is a nod to Giger's style.

Inspiration

H.R. Giger is an Academy Award-winning Swiss painter best known for his design work on the film Alien. Giger has worked predominantly in airbrush, creating strange monochromatic canvases depicting surreal, nightmarish landscapes. His most distinctive stylistic innovation is that of a representation of human bodies and machines in a cold, interconnected relationship, described as "biomechanical".

The ideas of Entropy and decay are common threads between the art of H.R. Giger and the Silent Hill movie and video games. One never knows when the world will start to crumble around them.
